A GREAT SERMON.

The baccalaureate sermon preached by Rev. Henry W. Little, rector of Grace Episcopal church, at the Baptist church Sunday morning was pronounced by all who heard it as one of the finest sermons ever delivered in Every seat in the church as well as in the annex was occupied, showing the popular interest in the cause of education and the admiration for the distinguished divine.

Mr. Little took for his text I Thes. 5:2i, "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

Mr. Little said that although uttered over two thousand years ago, the above is a twentieth century sentence. That St. Paul was a scholar. That was a pupil under Gama-Mr. J. F. Carlton, who is attending liel, the most celebrated Rabbi of that era and that the training he received taught him what education always teaches-"to prove all things." That with the application of this text the great world movements have been accomplished.

That a school boy sitting in the kitchen of an humble cottage home, observing the steam issue from an ordinary kettle, applied the test of St. Paul to it and the steam engine, with all its vast accomplishments, was given to the world. That Columbus, applying this test to the theory that the earth was round, added to our geography America, with its great activities and achievements.

The speaker said that we are only upon the threshold of our achievements and much remains yet in the realm of science, invention and morality for the schoolar to discover. That our crowded cities need better sanitation, purer air and water and better food and along these lines there are vast opportunities for the scholar and it is not uncertain that the public school of Ocala would give to the world in some of these lines of thought a Watt or a Columbus.

Mr. Little said that he had been a student in the free schools of England and had personal cognizance of the school system of Germany and other European countries, yet in her common school movement, the United States excels all other countries of the

He paid a high tribute to the Ocala teachers and said that the citizenship of Ocala should hold up their hands with sympathy and encouragement, for the future of America would be just what the pupils of today in the public schools would make it.

Along moral and religious lines, Mr. Little grew profound and elo-

He said that no one has the right to say that this is a wicked old world. That it is God's creation and He pronounced it not only good but very good, and, said the preacher, "it is good today." That the ideals of men are as high and the standard of morality as great as at any epoch in its history. That a man does not have to die to obtain heaven. That heaven is here on earth and it is possible for every man to make a heaven in his home and in his community by the example of his life.

Mr. Little's sermon was embellished with many incidents beautifully illustrating the moral lessons he intended to impress upon his congregation. One was the story of Ethan Allen, that rugged figure of the revoand a soldier, was a doubter but whose wife was a saintly follower of the Man of Galilee. When he was dying his daughter placed her arms around his neck and asked him if in religion she should be a follower of him or her mother he told her to follow her mother. That in that reply the gates of heaven were opened to Mr. H. A. Ford, Miss Emily Stotes- him and the old soldier was clothed in the Ritual will be held at the

We have heard a great many preachers in our time-Pierce, Weightman, Kavanaugh, Firtzgerald, Galloway, Candler, Young, Weed, Verot, the City of Toledo, county and state Moore, Gray and others, but we have never heard any superior to the Rev. Henry W. Little or one whose effect was more pleasing or profound.

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than; others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack o'clock a.m. Services as laid down of food, but because the food does not feed.

THE CANTALOUPE CROP.

A Fortune This Year.

C. M. Woodward, state agent for the Armour car lines, and R L. McKinstry, traveling solicitor for the C. F. X. refrigerator cars, were in Gainesville a day or two ago, and the following regarding their visit is taken from the Sun of that city:

"In summing up the cantaloupe situation in the territory between Gainesville and Ocala, Mr. McKinstry, who is well posted, states the acreage, exclusive of the Gainesville section, on the Atlantic Coast Line, is 1,000 acres, which will require 200 refrigerator cars to transport the crop.

"The distinction of shipping the first carload of captaloupes of the season will belong to a colored trucker, J. D. McDuffy, who will load a car of 400 crates on the 20th, and it will be billed from Ocala on the following day. This car has already been sold, and will bring $1,200 f. o. b. Ocala. This enterprising grower owns an extensive farm near Ocala, and is regarded as one of the safest and most territory between Anthony and Wildwood on the Seaboard Air Line, which territory the Armour Line con trols, there are about 1,700 acres in cantaloupes, which will require the service of 250 cars. The season in this section will not open until about June 1st, when Mr. Woodward expects to load the first car at Oxford.
